Keep Ghost Nets Away from Our Ocean: Penghu, NKUST Ocean Saving Volunteer Training Program

Removing marine debris is not an easy task but still a must-to-do mission to save our marine ecosystems.

Penghu County Government (PCG) has collaborated with NKUST Marine Affairs Research Center to remove abandoned fishing nets (or called ghost nets) and devised volunteer training programs since 2018.

The mission of these programs is to cultivate more talents with experience removing ghost nets and form a team of Ghost Nets Busters.

MARC Director Liu, Wen-Hong (劉文宏) stresses: "We believe only by raising people's awareness can we see them voluntarily learn to collect and remove derelict fishing gear in the ocean. However, it does take time to train divers with the right knowledge of marine debris and protect themselves while removing debris."

PCG and NKUST both well know that cleanups do nothing to tackle the root of the problem, as human beings continue discarding waste, leaving it under the ocean for volunteers to remove.

Possible ways forward would be for both organizations to continue marine debris removal projects, divers training, and educating people to protect our ocean planet.
