NKUST Won 3 Gold and 1 Silver in the 2022 TSAA

The University put years of effort into pushing the development of its USR projects, and this work has been fabulously successful.

The Taiwan Institute for Sustainable Energy (TAISE) held the 2022 Taiwan Sustainable Action Award (the 2022 TSAA) Ceremony on August 12. The University has four USR project teams competing in the university category of the 2022 TSAA. The USR project teams won three Gold and one Silver medal in the university category.

The four USR projects covered issues across agriculture, fisheries, and disaster prevention and have introduced the concept of SDGs into actual practice. These project teams were not just drawing a new blueprint for local communities but provided innovative business strategies. The teams expected that their projects could narrow the gap between small towns and cities.

Vice President Lee, Jia-Hong, co-project head of "Township Transformation Project," attended the ceremony and received awards for all winning USR project teams.

In the future, the University will continue to review local issues, integrate local resources, and promote regional industrial development.
